

This Central New York Humanities Corridor's Incarceration and Decarceration Working Group presents

WRITING THROUGH PRISON

Storytelling, Power, and Community

Johnny Page

David Todd

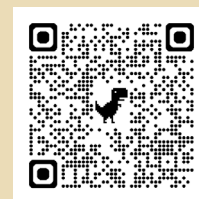

Former students of the Education Justice Project share their experiences, reflecting on the transformative role of writing and higher education both inside and beyond prison. Attendees will learn how they have drawn on these experiences to build a life on the outside.

Monday, March 24

7:00-8:00 p.m.

Peter Graham Scholarly Commons, Bird Library 114 and Zoom (use QR code to register)

CART services will be provided

Following the talk, we will have an in-person writing workshop (8-9 p.m.) with Page, Todd, and Thomas Gant, Reentry Coordinator, R.E.J.I. Program-University of Rochester.

Johnny Page is a storyteller who leads ConTextos Chicago, a storytelling organization that utilizes the power of storytelling as a mechanism for healing and transformation.

David Todd was the 2020 EJP New Horizons Award Recipient. He is a member of the EJP Learning Fellows Fellowship and a member of the EJP Advisory Council.

Central New York Humanities Corridor

Cosponsors: Writing Studies, Rhetoric, and Composition; the Humanities Center, the Engaged Humanities Network; and Project Mend that is made possible through collaboration with the Center for Community Alternatives and through an HNY Post-Incarceration Humanities Partnership, which is generously supported by the Mellon Foundation. For queries, please contact Patrick W. Berry at puberry@syr.edu.